

Today Joe Wilson came under attack for spending around 10-dollars to bring small tokens of his appreciation to Afghanistan veterans and their families. The items in question are nothing more than a glorified shot glass.

Congressman Wilson is a steadfast defender of our military and their families. The photo above shows that any inquiry into an item half the size of a 12-ounce Coke can is another example of how Nancy Pelosi and her liberal allies have their priorities all wrong in Washington. This is what we can expect from folks who have attacked Joe for visiting our troops in a war zone and have taken more than $370,000 from a radical liberal group like Moveon.org that slandered Gen. David Petraeus, the man leading military efforts in Afghanistan.

Congressman Wilson was once asked by a reporter whether he ever purchased anything on a Congressional trip. He mentioned buying some "marble goblets" for troops and their family members. The items cost $1.60 each. The article that resulted from Joe's comment gave his political opponents in Washington the excuse to spend thousands of taxpayer dollars to go after him for buying tokens of his appreciation that cost a total of around $10.

Before the trip to Kabul, the Congressman brought $200 of his own money with him to make personal purchases such as this.

If you are as outraged by these ridiculous allegations as I am, you can help Joe by visiting StandwithJoe.com to tell Congressman Wilson that you stand with him in the fight against Washington's liberal establishment.

Sincerely,
